Robinson AD, Wermeling DP. Intranasal administration of naloxone injection for the treatment of opioid overdose. American Journal of Health-System Pharmacy, accepted February 25, 2014. 2014

Robinson AD, Wermeling DP. (2014, April). Intranasal administration of naloxone injection for the treatment of opioid overdose. Presented at the University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy's Annual Rho Chi Research Day, Lexington, KY. The purpose of this project was to review the pharmacology, pharmacokinetic properties, and clinical efficacy of naloxone injection administered intranasally for the reversal of opioid overdose. 2014

Robinson AD. (2013, November). Enhanced patient access to naloxone. The Kentucky Pharmacist. 2013

Robinson AD, Wilham K, Feldman J, Neville L (2011, April). Medicine in Ancient Egypt. Preceptor Dr. K. Quinn. Presented at Celebration of Student Research and Creativity, Northern Kentucky University, Highland Heights, KY. Abstract: Advanced medical and pharmaceutical practices existed in ancient Egypt. Study of mummies reveals great anatomical knowledge as well as effective health treatments. Texts and artifacts show Egyptian medical tools and techniques. Research included visits to archaeological sites during NKU's first Study Abroad trip to Egypt. Comparison with modern medical techniques confirms Egypt's legacy to the medical world. 2011

The Rood and Riddle Guide to Safety in the Workplace. Rood and Riddle Equine Hospital, Lexington, KY. 2008. Collaborated with the other members of the safety committee to write the hospital's first customized safety policy and procedures manual, including the development of evacuation procedures for 14 buildings. 2008
